The federal government does not give any direct money to women's shelters. I am enclosing a short outline of the programs the government funds under the Family Violence Initiative. The response was provided by the National Clearing House on Family violence (957-2938). If you need to clarify this point further, you would need to speak to David Allan at the Public Health Agency of Canada 954-7849

In general, the money for these initiatives goes to research or to assist associations involved in family violence.

Please do not hesitate to get back to me if I can be of any further help to you on this question.
